Save The Oceans

Assalamualaikum warahmatullahi wabarakatuh

Before I begin to deliver this speech, I would like to invite you to thank to Allah the Almighty, who has given us mercy and blessing, so we can meet together in this blessing place. And also let's deliver Sholawat and Salam to our prophet Muhammad SAW, who has brought us from the darkness to the brightness.

Ladies and gentleman, to celebrate an annual event of World Oceans Day on 8 June 2022, I would like to deliver a speech about "Save The Oceans".

The ocean is the largest ecosystem on earth. Marine ecosystems are 71% compared to land ecosystems which are only 31%. The sea functions to regulate temperature levels on earth, because the sea can bring heat from the equator to the poles and vice versa. Therefore, it is important to protect the oceans as one of the efforts to save the Earth. The ocean provides many benefits for humans so that its damage will have an impact on human life.

Ladies and gentlemen, on this auspicious occasion I would like to invite all of you to protect the oceans. Therefore, let's start from a very small thing: throw garbage in its place, reduce the use of plastic, keep the beach clean, support organizations that protect the ocean, More education about the sea.

That is all my speech. I hope my brief speech about the environment will be useful for us. I am sorry for some mistakes. Thank you very much for your attention.

Wassalamualaikum warahmatullahi wabarakatuh
